

NWLVMA Presents:

All About Corneal Ulcers

Date: November 18th, Lecture begins 7-8 PM

Location: The Pearl

6871 Fern Ave

Shreveport, LA 71105

1 Hour of CE credit-open to doctors and technicians

Speaker: Kelsey Bailey, DVM, DACVO

CE Event Description: Please join Dr. Bailey in learning all about corneal disease in various species. This 1 hour lecture will cover several topics, such as recognition and types of corneal ulcers in dogs, cats, horses, and exotics, underlying pathogenesis, diagnostics, and treatments for ulcerations in various species. Treatment with medications as well as surgical options will be discussed.

About your speaker:

Dr. Kelsey Bailey is a Shreveport, Louisiana native that has received training and education throughout the country.

She graduated in 2018 from LSU Veterinary School, then completed a Small Animal Surgery and Internal Medicine internship at Oklahoma State University School of Veterinary Medicine. Then she completed 2 specialty ophthalmology internships in Ohio and Oregon, at MedVet and Northwest Veterinary Specialists, respectively. Dr. Bailey completed her 3 year-long residency training in Chicago, IL with Eye Care for Animals.

In her spare time, Dr. Bailey enjoys crafting, spending time with friends and family, and having adventures with her husband and two dogs.